cut and dried action at the instance of the promoters of the movement. What the final results will be will depend entirely upon those who may attend.

The conference will assemble at noon Wednesday, and it cannot be stated how long it will be in session. There is apt to be a disposition for thorough discussion, and it may require some time to get through with the talking. The visitors will be welcomed by the people of Roanoke with their characteristic hospitality. Reduced rates will be offered at the hoisis, and good accommodations will the holeis, and good accommodations will be provided at $1 to $2 per day. The Southern, Baltimore and Ohlo, Chesapeake and Ohlo, and Norfolk and Western railroads have all offered reduced rates at about a fare and one third for the round trip. Tickets will be on sale May 13th, 14th, and 15th, good to return until May 20th

THE ORGANIZATION.

There is nothing definite as to who will preside, or as to any of the organization, as these points, like the discussions, will be a matter for the conference to determine. The members of the committee state that there is every reason to believe that the gathering will be representative and conservative, and that the best interests of the State and the Democratic party will be promoted. The meeting will be called to order by a member of rests of the State and the Democratic party will be promoted. The meeting will be called to order by a member of the committee, and Mayor S. E. Jones will deliver an address of welcome. As has been stated, the object of the meeting is to confer together as to what steps are necessary and advisable to secure a constitutional convention at the earliest practical moment.

I notice that such prominent Grand-Army men as Colonel Sexton, former postmaster of Chicago, has no word of censure, and in fact commends the action of the parties who are foremost in the matter. I shall be very much disappointed if our ties who are foremost in the matter. I shall be very much disappointed if our commander-in-chief. Lawler, offers a word of proteat. Certainly if there should be any ground for objection the Grand-Army men of Chicago should be the first to speak. The war has been over too long to justify such narrow views. I do not assume to speak for the Grand-Army in general, neither do I think that the few posts so far heard from on the subject voice the sentiment of any considerable number of the organization."

METHODS OF AN ELDERLY BEAUTY. Madame is inclined to be too stout, so she rides horseback—not, as she frankly says, because she likes it, but to keep her flesh down; and also she is an attendant at one of the fashionable gymnasiums—8100 more a month is not an extravagant sum to set aside for this branch of the beauty-preserving process, and for a sum total we will consider $255 a month the cost of a perfectly well-groomed woman of the distinctly fashionable world in New York city in the year of grace 1895.

It is only just to say that the lady I am writing of is nearer 50 than 40, and Madame is inclined to be too stout, so

A large brush is now especially manufactured for face scrubbing-it costs at retail $1.25 It measures about six inches in length and five across. The wood back is un-varnished, and the bristles called camel's-hair bristles. It is easily obtainable.

Use a pure soap.

Bran and almond meal-bags are excellent things for a luxurious bath. They are not necessary for the purpose we have in view, but inasmuch as they are have in view, but inasmuch as they are delicious and easily obtained by those who wish to buy them, and not difficult to make at home by those who prefer to do so, I will add they may be found at the usual shops devoted to toilet articles, and cost about 29 cents each. I will also add a receipt for making them at home to this paper. The bran and almond meal-bag will make your bath soft and fragrant, but it will not do away with the necessity for soap and the scrubbing-brush. If your finances will permit, you may also use in your bath two tablespooneful of a bath liquid will permit, you may also be in your bath two tablespoonful of a bath liquid which is very delicate and fragrant. I give the receipt for making this also; it is easily prepared at home. The bran and almond meal-bags and lait virginal are luxuries—not necessities in the beauty process. You may take your bath either in the morning or at night just before retiring, with a preference for the night HOW TO BATHE. Fill your tub as full as it is comfortable for you to sit in with warm water, begin by scrubbing the face thoroughly with the brush and pure soap; fext take care to rinse it well, first in warm water, gradually decreasing the temperature until you finally get a good cold dash o water all over the face. Your face i now washed, and if you have been it the most reprehensible custom of usin a little soft cloth dipped in water, or the most reprenensible custom of using a little soft cloth dipped in water, or a spenge, or any makeshift for soap and scrubbing, pray pardon me when I say your face is now washed, but it will not be clean, by which I mean rid of the accumulation of dead skin and clogged pores, for a month yet with a daily repetition of the scrubbing—and just here let me ask how long you think you could keep your hands clean if you used a little rag dipped in water for the purpose? Now the texture of the skin of the face, particularly if oily, possesses a peculiar attraction for dust, and the loath-some blackheads, or as they are still more vulgarly called, flesh worms, are nothing but an accumulation of dirt (pardon the terseness of my English), each black point marking an obstructed follick. You may count on banfshing blackheads forever if you will follow my instructions, for later I will give full directions as to the treatment for these truly disgusting robbers of good looks. After your face is thoroughly scrubbed and rinsed, take the ordinary fleshbrush with the long handle and scrub your body quickly and thoroughly—decrease the temperature of the water by brush with the long handle and scrub your body quickly and thoroughly—decrease the temperature of the water by letting the cold water run until it is cold. Sponge off with the cold water, and you will have taken one step each day toward the bright eye and clear skin we are striving for.

TREATMENT AT NIGHT.

TREATMENT AT NIGHT.

If you take your bath at night, just before retiring apply some good emellient to your face—there are several to be had which are highly recommended. Avoid nostrums which have not been analyzed and endorsed by reputable physicians, and keep away from any preparation containing hair-growing qualities, or we shall have you with a moustache on your hands, and that I do not in the least desire. It is an understood truth that the prevalence of superflous hair on our women's faces, which has never been so extensive as now, is directly accounted for by the fact that we have all more or lezs, as families or individuals, been addicted to using impure ointments. Please, therefore, eschew for your face all such compounds.

If you take your bath and scruf at night you will find, no matter how nervous and tired you may be, that it will induce a delicious languor, and unless you have been drinking a lot of strong tes or coffee during the day—about the iniquity of which I have some-thing to say later-you will, like a wise woman, go directly to bed and fail into a dreamless, placid sleep, during which, if you could but see yourself as you lie there so sweetly resting, you would be amazed to find the lines smoothed on brow and cheek, for this much the hath and scrub will do almost insine-diately.

well the lassitude which a warm bath often induces, taken early in the day, even when followed by the cold sponge. You cannot keep your body clean by scrubbing in cold water alone, any more than you can wash clothes in cold water, and, without strong alkalles, get the dirt out of them. A cold sponge is most invigorating to those who are robust enough to bear the shock; but it is utter nonsense to say it can take the night, finsing it with care, and then put the cream or emollient on.

Note.—It is possible the scrubbing will for a few days irritate your face. (Use the emollient freely.) It will pass away as soon as your skin becomes used to the

ALEXANDER ISLAND. The Matter of Jurisdiction-A Suggestion. A Washington special to the Baltimor

Sun says: The exclusive jurisdiction of the United States extends at least five miles from the Capitol in every direction, except on the southwest, where the exclusive jurisdiction expires within less than two miles, for the jurisdiction of Virginia is concurrent with that of the Federal District upon the waters of the Potomac. The change in the jurisdiction made by act of Congress, which returned to Virginia in 185 the territory which had been act of Congress, which returned to Virginia in 1847 the territory which had been ceded in 1789, has rendered possible the existence of the gaming places of Alexander Island, almost in sight of the porticos of the Capitol.

There is absolutely no chance that any court will declare Alexander Island to be within the jurisdiction of the District authorities. There is no likelihood that the county authorities of Alexandria county, with little population and light revenue, will ever be able to maintain a sufficient police force to outwit or overawe the throngs which use Jackson City and its neighborhood for sports made penal by acts of Congress. The only practicable remedy for this state of things is the purchase of Alexander Island by the United States, A rivulet only separates the upper portion of the island from the Arlington tract, which is already governed by the United puty marshal and a United States com-missioner are its civil officers, and cases arising there are tried by Judge Hughes in a United States court. No resident of Arlington can vote anywhere. The exercise of a like jurisdiction over Alex-ander Island after its acquisition from its owners would settle all the questions which now occasion such violent discus-sion here.

and Crockery-Ware,

tion, on the premises, on TUESDAY, MAY 14, 1825, heginning at 12 o'clock M., the LARGE, WELL-KNOWN, AND VERY VALUABLE FLOUR-MILLS above referred to, sometimes known as the "HAXALL CRENSHAW MILLS," with the unusually valuable water-power of about 700 horse-power, and other appurtenances and privileges belonging thereto. The mills are capable of turning out daily 1,500 barrels of flour and 1,200 bushels of corn-meal, and are equipped with much of the latest and most approved machinery. The immense water-power capable of being greatly increased by proper utilization: the large areas of adjacent vacant lands, and the great capacity of the buildings, there being over 125,000 feet of floor room, will permit, indeed invites the establishment of other industries, such as an electric plant, or woolfen, cotton, or paper-mills, or an extension of the present plant.

The brands have an aimost world-wide reputation and possess great value.

The never-falling and abundant supply of water which furnishes power is drawn from the river by a private canal, easily and cheaply maintained, and the isolation of the mills minimizes the dancer of fire. These mills, with so many valuable appurtenances, and situated in a city so favored in climate, health, and unrivalled shipping facilities by water and rail, and offering such vast possibilities of extension, should attract the attention of manufacturers and capitalists.

The VACANT LUTS may be sold with WEDNESDAY, MAY 15, 1885,

The VACAST the Manager of the mills or separately, as may seem best at the time of sale.

The Southern railway, connecting with all transportation lines here, water and rail, has a stem right in the midst of this property, and a capable engineer asserts that the water-power can be startled. two, and three years for consist seams payable semi-annually, and the purchaser to keep the buildings, machinery, and fixtures adequately insured as further security for the purchase money, and the title to be retained until all the purchase money is paid and a conveyance ordered by the Court. The purchaser is to assume the perpetual annual ground rent of 2,000 bushels of mirchantable corn, to accrue and become due from and after December 31, 1894, and the taxes, State and city, for the year 1856, but the purchaser is to have the option of paying all cash or a larger proportion thereof than one fourth, and of giving bonds to mature at earlier dates than those above indicated.
